Pornography Grown To $500 Million Racket

W A S H I N G T O N (AP) — Senate investigators said Sunday that the traffic in pornography has grown into "a $500-million-dollar-a-year racket" that is warping adolescents and contributing to sex crimes.

"The quantity and quality of the material bidders description," the Senate Juvenile Delinquency subcommittee said. "It is wanton, depraved, nauseating, despicable, demoralizing, destructive and capable of poisoning any mind at any age."

The subcommittee called in a 71-page report for new federal and state laws and a marshaling of public opinion to combat the traffic. It said "a very large percentage" of the stuff reaches teenagers.

'Insidious Effect'

The report, based on the subcommittee's nationwide investigation under the chairmanship of Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), said:

"The most insidious effect of present day pornographic materials is the portrayal of abnormal sexual behavior as being normal. Perversion for profit thus wrecks the chances of the impressionable adolescent to achieve a normal, healthy relationship upon reaching maturity."

The subcommittee said that, "While this traffic has been growing, sex crimes have increased with almost unbelievable rapidity." It cited statistics, including an approximate doubling of the number of rapists under 20 since 1940.

"The impulses which spur people to sex crimes unquestionably are intensified by reading and seeing pornographic materials," the subcommittee said, although it added that "the sharp increase in crimes of this type is largely the result of social and family up-

Military 'Evasion' Blasted

... By Solons

W A S H I N G T O N (AP) — Two House committees have cracked down on the military for what they call the "unparsimonious misuse" of congressional reports to "evade giving out legitimate information" to the public.

The unusual action came to light Sunday in an exchange of correspondence between Rep. Moss (D-Calif.), chairman of the House Freedom of Information Committee, and Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.), chairman of the Defense Appropriations subcommittee.

Moss, in reply to questions, said the defense establishment had attempted to use a committee report accompanying last year's appropriation bill "as a convenient screen to hide behind" in handling information.

Disapproval

"It was clearly the intent of the Appropriations Committee to express disapproval of the release of information about weapons and plans, but it was broadly interpreted by the Defense Department to apply to virtually all types of information," he said.

As a result, the Appropriations Committee in its latest report this month included a bristling directive to military officials not to construe its comments "as a cover-up for inefficiencies and weakness of administration."

The crackdown and its inception in an appropriations report of last year criticizing the release of what the committee deemed to be military secrets. The report concluded: "Too much information has been released which is of no benefit to the American public, but which is of tremendous value to our opponents."

Another "disturbing and shocking fact," the report said, is that minors are being lured into the ranks of "pushers" or vendors of pornography. The subcommittee said the distribution of pornographic materials is widespread and evidence indicates a "possibility" that it is handled by an organized syndicate.

Truman Tours Vatican, Visits Pope 30 Minutes

R O M E (AP) — Harry S. Truman, former president of the United States, spent an hour and a half in Vatican City Sunday—including a 30-minute audience with Pope Pius XII. Then he went to Protestant church services.

Truman, an advocate of renewed diplomatic relations with the Vatican, is the first U. S. chief of state to be received at the Holy See—either in office or after-for 37 years. President Woodrow Wilson paid a formal visit on Pope Benedict XV in 1919, during World War I peace talks. The United States has had no diplomatic relations with the Vatican since 1870.

Truman was alone with the pontiff for 15 minutes in his library, after being introduced by Bishop Martin J. O'Connor of Scranton, Pa., rector of the pontifical North American College here.

It also recommended that "religious, civic, and service groups provide the aggressive leadership needed in forming public opinion and inspiring the public in the fight against pornography."

Another need, the subcommittee said, is for better sex education for teen-agers.

Gold Medal

The Pope gave Truman a gold medal of his pontificate. Then Mrs.

Truman, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward and Eugene Bailey, Truman's secretary, were ushered into the audience chamber. Wood-a.m. Sunday, CST), rocked and seared a wide mid-Pacific expanse and its deadly radioactive aftercloud was wafted by winds over ocean wastes to the north.

The fearful air burst at height of thousands of feet—equal to that of several Empire State buildings—was triggered only a few weeks after Russia trumpeted a boast it had won the race to be first to detonate a "packaged" H-bomb dropped from a plane.

10 Megatons

The force of the fabulous blast from America's first aerial hydrogen missile was measured in several megatons, and one unofficial estimate said it was equal to about 10 million tons of TNT. A megaton equals the energy released by the explosion of one million tons of TNT.

Mondays tremendous H-bomb eruption was equivalent to a blast from TNT piled in boxes so numerous they would fill Yankee Stadium, Ebbets Field and the Polo Grounds. It shook a big section of the earth and was undoubtedly recorded on some seismographs air point of the blinding burst itself.

34 Miles Away

The fantastic spectacle was witnessed by newsmen and Civil Defense officials from aboard the communications ship Mt. McKinley, 34 miles off the target isle of Namu, in the first public showing of an American hydrogen test.

The enormous blast emmersed America's huge Eniwetok proving ground in a tidal wave of light and scalding heat which, aboard the Mt. McKinley, felt as though the door of a nearby blast furnace had been suddenly opened.

Revealing a new dimension in America's defense arsenal, Mondays explosion of history's ghastliest mass destruction weapon hoisted its devastating power several thousand feet above the mudfireball at least four miles across the stilled watery horizon toward which the shielded eyes of the observers were tensely trained.

Then

the ensuing mushroom cloud began ballooning overhead until it had climbed to the awesome height of more than 100,000 feet—about 20 miles.

The spreading umbrella of peach color, and now golden and now gray, measured at least 50 miles in breadth at 55,000 feet.

160 Miles Wide

There in the great upper-level winds took charge. By the time the mushroom had reached 100,000 feet, in a sky which the rising sun had turned into a gloriously pale blue, the span across the top of the lethal cloud was 100 miles or more.

The mammoth flashing explosion itself would have turned to cinder and blown away any great city on the globe. And it would have erected its own breath-taking "monument" over the desolate ruins below.

It stretched up from below the horizon to at least 20,000 feet in the air, and it was infinitely hotter than risk of blindness.

All of the Joint Task Force Seven aircraft flying in the Bikini area at the time the oft-postponed H-bomb detonation finally occurred got away from the effects of "the shot." This was the official announcement issued by Rear Adm. B. Hall Hanlon, "Operation Redwing" commander, one hour after the big blast.

Flew Over Fireball

The planes which took part in the historic, complex experiment were believed to include the 1,000-mile-per-hour E-101-A jet which had been assigned to streak high over the fireball that arose from the thermonuclear detonation.

The powerful vacuum movement that followed the detonation was believed to have sucked up much of tiny Namu and some scientific equipment on the target isle, and probably also some of the test monkeys and rabbits which had been placed around "ground zero" for test purposes.

All became part of the cloud that ascended three times higher than Mount Everest. In that cloud was the equivalent of millions of pounds of radium-like matter. Only about three pounds of radium have been refined from pitchblende since its discovery by the Curie's more than a half century ago.

'Mr. AF' Ran Bomb-Drop From Plane

ABOARD USS MT. McKINLEY (Monday) — (INS) — A 36-year-old major, called "Mister Air Force" by his colleagues, commanded the B-52 jet bomber from which America's most horrendous weapon of war—the hydrogen bomb—was dropped today.

He is Major David M. Crutchlow, a member of that elite outfit known as the Fifth Test Group (Atomic) which headquarters at Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque.

For the plane commander it was the last and greatest of a number of drops of nuclear weapons. He returns soon to his advanced studies at the University of Colorado and when finished with engineering courses will become one of the "elder statesmen" of the nation's air force.

Crutchlow set out on his history-making flight fully confident that he would accomplish his perilous mission and return safely. His confidence and optimism were shared by the six other persons who rode the tropical skies of the Pacific with the bomb.

Maj. Crutchlow has more experience in B-52s than any man in the Air Force. He picked up the first of the huge planes to come off Boeing's assembly line at Seattle, Wash.

Race Driver Hurt

Ward Van Arsdall, 20, of 2545 R, was treated for minor cuts and bruises at a local hospital and released Sunday after the stock car he was driving rolled over twice during the consolation race at the Capitol Beach race program.

Today's Chuckle

The rural school teacher finally decided to give an A to a pupil for his answer to an arithmetic problem. The problem: "If your father sold 1,500 bushels of corn for $2 per bushel, what would he get?"

The answer: "A new car."

A DEADLY H-BOMB MUSHROOM

This mushroom cloud, towering thousands of feet in the air, was photographed during a previous H-Bomb test at Eniwetok Atoll in the Pacific. The only radiophoto available of the current air burst, made 15 seconds after the blast from 36 miles away, was an undistinguishable black and white smudge.

Men Admit Tying Farm Woman To Windmill After Kidnapping

Hold without charge in the city jail here were David Ernest Landry, 25, who gave his address as Big Springs, Neb., and Wayne Everett Morgan, 31, Concord, N.H.

Perkins County Sheriff Albert Wessel said the two men signed statements admitting the abduction Saturday of Mrs. Mabel Gallan, who lives about 10 miles northwest of Bismarck, S.D., in the extreme northwestern corner of the state.

Mrs. Gallan was found Saturday night gagged and bound to a pasture windmill 25 miles from her farm home. She had been left there by her abductors.

The new national committeewoman campaigned all over the state to succeed Mrs. Lilian Burton, Portland, who did not seek re-election. Her husband, Harry, lists his occupation as "property management."

Pornography Grown To $500 Million Racket

WASHINGTON — Senate investigators said Sunday the traffic in pornography has grown into "a $500-million-dollar-a-year racket" that is warping adolescents and contributing to sex crimes.

"The quantity and quality of the material bidders described," the Senate Juvenile Delinquency subcommittee said. "It is wanton, depraved, nauseating, repulsive, demoralizing, destructive and capable of poisoning any mind at any age."

The subcommittee called in a 71-page report for new federal and state laws and a marshaling of public opinion to combat the traffic. It said "a very large percentage" of the stuff reaches teenagers."

'Insidious Effect'

The report, based on the subcommittee's nationwide investigation under the chairmanship of Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), said:

"The most insidious effect of present day pornographic materials is the portrayal of abnormal sexual behavior as being normal. Perversion for profit thus wrecks the chances of the impressionable adolescent to achieve a normal, healthy relationship upon reaching maturity."

The subcommittee said that, "While this traffic has been growing, sex crimes have increased with almost unbelievable rapidity." It cited statistics, including an approximate doubling of the number of rapists under 20 since 1940.

"The impulses which spur people to sex crimes unquestionably are intensified by reading and seeing pornographic materials," the subcommittee said, although it added that "the sharp increase in crimes of this type is largely the result of social and family upheavals" arising from World War II.

The subcommittee stressed it was not talking about "questionable comic books or salacious magazines" but about "outright pornography."

This, it said, ranges from erotic books and pamphlets, motion picture films, still photographs, playing cards, paper match cards and wood carvings to items "of a character too delicate to identify."

In addition to Kefauver, the subcommittee members are Sens. Hennings (D-Mo.), Daniel (D-Tex.), Langer (R-N.D.) and Wiley (R-Wis.).

The subcommittee not only expressed concern about the large quantities of pornography reaching adolescents but also about the many films and photographs in which it said young girls and boys have been used as actors and models to portray "indescribable perversions."

'Minors Lured'

Another "disturbing and shocking fact," the report said, is that minors are being lured into the role of "pushers" or vendors of pornography. The subcommittee said the distribution of pornographic materials is widespread and evidence indicates a "possibility" that it is handled by an organized syndicate.

The subcommittee said that, "Schoolyards and the streets in the immediate vicinity of schools are lurking places for smut peddlers. Some operate on foot, some from parked cars, and even inoffensive candy shops and stores close to schools are known to have engaged in under-the-counter trafficking in pornographic items."

It recommended that both the federal and state governments pass laws providing stiffer penalties for the production, distribution or possession of pornographic materials.

As other steps, the report urged legislation to force the disclosure of the source of such material and to permit the seizure of vehicles or other equipment used to transport or produce it.

The subcommittee also proposed the creation of a National Advisory Crime Commission to serve as a clearing house of information relating to pornography, narcotics and other law violations.

It also recommended that religious, civic, and service groups provide the aggressive leadership needed in forming public opinion and inspiring the public in the fight against pornography."

Revealing a new dimension in America's defense arsenal, Monday's explosion of history's ghastliest mass destruction weapon hoisted its devastating power several thousand feet above the mid-

34 Miles Away

The fantastic spectacle was witnessed by newsmen and Civil Defense officials from aboard the communications ship Mt. McKinley, 34 miles off the target isle of Namu, in the first public showing of an American hydrogen test.

The enormous blast emmersed America's huge Eniwetok proving ground in a tidal wave of light and scalding heat which, aboard the Mt. McKinley, felt as though the door of a nearby blast furnace had been suddenly opened.

The aerial unleashing of man's newest and virtually indescribable weapon spread a chameleon-hued fireball at least four miles across the stilled watery horizon toward which the shielded eyes of the observers were tensely trained.

Then the ensuing mushroom cloud began ballooning overhead until it had climbed to the awesome height of more than 100,000 feet—about 20 miles.

The spreading umbrella of peach color, and now golden and now gray, measured at least 50 miles in breadth at 55,000 feet.

160 Miles Wide

There the great upper-level winds took charge. By the time the mushroom had reached 100,000 feet, in a sky which the rising sun had turned into a gloriously pale blue, the span across the top of the lethal cloud was 100 miles or more.

The mammoth flashing explosion itself would have turned to cinder and blown away any great city on the globe. And it would have erected its own breath-taking "monument" over the desolate ruins below. That "monument," over Bikini atoll, first took the shape of a pillar of light that the unaided human eye could not confront without risk of blindness.

It stretched up from below the horizon to at least 20,000 feet in the air, and it was infinitely hotter than the sun.

With shattering force, America now had "trumped" the card played by Communist Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev when he claimed recently that Russia already had dropped and detonated an aerial H-bomb.

A great cloud sailed between our observers' ship and the violently growing mushroom, helping to bring an uncertain darkness back to this ocean waste which only moments before had literally writhed in light and heat.

Brace Yourselves!

For the observer's eyes, at least, "the bomb" had gone and the oppressive silence had surrounded the phenomena of the light, heat and the hellish apparition grew more cloyng.

"Brace yourselves; brace yourselves for the shock wave!" the iron throats of the Mt. McKinley's "bullhorn" loudspeakers brayed.

And then, just two minutes and 53 seconds later, the voice and the shudder of "the bomb" was heard as the shock wave hit the Mt. McKinley.

There was no jovian thunderclap; no roughing up of some 7,000 men at the rails of the task force ships at sea off Bikini.

Rather, it was the voice of a giant from some forgotten childhood table—clearing his hairy throat and clumping off to his lair.

The great curtain of cloud stayed rooted between our ship and the drama taking place on the horizon. But it could not obscure the spectacle very long, for the exploded bomb, code-named "Cherokee," was racing for heaven like the proverbial homesick angel.

"It's still a million degrees centigrade, even up that high," a scientist remarked on the bridge of the Mt. McKinley.

His was the only voice that had been heard since a seaman had said in an awed and faraway voice:

"Oh, dear God, what that would have done to my home town!"

As the expanding mushroom rose to its full, stratospheric height, lacy vapor trails from the friskier of 34 planes now began to appear, going in and coming out of the radioactive cloud.

For others—notably the seven-man crew of the eight-jet B-52 H-bomber named "Barbara Grace," which will live in history for this perilous performance—the day's work was over.

The method by which the B-52 drop plane escaped the wrath of the cataclysmic wallop it delivered on Namu remained a secret. But it was presumed that as soon as the bomb was safely away from the

They left her in the trunk of the car and drove away.

When Mrs. Gallan was reported missing, Sheriff Wessel put out an alert for the two men.

"They seemed friendly," the sheriff said. They told him later they panicked after the incident, and drove the car cross-country into the field.

After leaving Mrs. Gallan at the windmill, they said they burned out the car's engine, then took it to the Shadhill Dam south of here.

Morgan and Landry said they pushed the car into the reservoir, hoping to sink it out of sight.

Army-AF Rivalry Is 'Healthy'—Case, Mahon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) and Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.) said Sunday they think a new outbreak of Army-Air Force rivalry is a "healthy thing."

Case said "it keeps them from getting sloppy." Mahon said now that the dispute which "has been brooding under the surface" is out in the open all Americans have a part in the "historical decision" of what role each service should play in the future.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) said he didn't consider the rivalry a healthy thing. He said "taxpayers are concerned about waste of funds" which he contended results from efforts of the Army, Navy and Air Force to develop competing weapons.

Mahon, chairman of the House Military Appropriations subcommittee, was interviewed on a TV-radio show. Jackson and Case appeared in a television debate just one day after published reports pictured the Army as feeling that continued emphasis on air power can lead only to "national disaster."

Public Feud

This public feud was termed "a most unfortunate business" by Secretary of Defense Wilson, who said he would look into it personally.

Case said he was not disturbed by sharp rivalry among the services but felt, on the contrary, that it strengthens the defense effort by keeping the services on their toes.

Jackson, however, said this rivalry has produced "waste and duplication of effort," particularly in the field of missile development.

The Defense Department, he said, has a responsibility to make basic decisions on which service should do which job. He said this is not being done and added:

'Passed Up'

"I think quite clearly that what is happening is that these problems are being passed up to Congress..."

Case argued that the services should work independently on similar weapons in order to tailor them to "their individual needs."

On the question of whether U.S. defense forces are adequate, Case and Jackson agreed they meet the nation's present needs.

But Jackson contended they will be inadequate in the 1958-60 period.

B52 Delays

Jackson said Wilson delayed for one year an increase in production schedules for the B52 intercontinental jet bomber. And he said he believes further increases are being put off in order to hold down defense spending until next year.

Case said B52 production was curtailed initially to take advantage of "technological advances." As a result, he said, "we will have a much better B52 than we otherwise would have had."

Mahon said "a certain amount of rivalry is good" and that because "we are rapidly moving into a different type of warfare" it was inevitable to have "pulling and hauling" between the services.

Saying the situation "is going to get worse before it gets better," Mahon said trouble is "going to be busting out all over" until civilian and military chiefs in the Pentagon decide the role of each service.

Keep It Open

He said he did not believe Secretary of Defense Wilson could make the decision quickly. But, Mahon said he thought the problem should be kept before the public until it is decided, so long as no military secrets are exposed.

Asked what role Congress should play in the dispute, Mahon said he didn't think Congress should decide the role of each service but should "get the facts in the open."

Another Republican, Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, took issue with Democratic criticism of the defense program in a separate interview filmed for television broadcast—"Reporters' Roundup."

"Actually," Bridges said, "we have done an excellent job on preparedness and on the defense program."

New Well To Double Supply, End Water Shortage At Bennet

By DEL HARDING
Star Staff Writer

BENNET, Neb.—Work is nearly finished on a new well which will double Bennet's water supply.

The new well is located at the south edge of town about 25 feet from the community's only other operating well. It is 44 feet deep and is producing 25 gallons a minute—about the same as the older well.

R. E. Clark, publisher of the Bennet Sun, says when the new well is put into operation it will more than take care of Bennet's water needs.

The community has been under voluntary water use restrictions for several weeks.

Clark says many persons have installed plumbing improvements and washing machines in their homes in recent years and thus, together with little rain, brought about the water shortage.

Attempts were made to use a well which had not been used for a number of years but it was found to be stopped up.

It was cheaper, Clark adds, to drill a new well so a village board meeting engaged Moser Bros. of Hickman for the task.

WHITE PICKETS ANTI-PICKETED BY 'BOP' FANS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Pickets staged a White Citizens Council demonstration outside a rock-and-roll show Sunday, and picketers were picketed by young rock-and-roll lovers.

About 25 police officers watched the orderly demonstration outside the Municipal Auditorium, where the show headed by rock-and-roll star Bill Haley was performed.

Negro singer Nat (King) Cole was attacked by a group of white men in the same auditorium when he appeared at a similar program April 10.

Three Cheers

A group of about 12 teen-age boys carried a crude homemade sign reading, "Rock and Roll is Here to Stay," and "Three Cheers for Bill Haley."

Police Commissioner Robert Lindberg said the demonstration against be-bop and rock-and-roll was sponsored by the North Alabama White Citizens Council. The council says this is degrading to white teenagers.

All persons on the program except Haley and his band were Negroes.

Heart Attack Kills Mrs. John Snyder

Her husband, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Overland Corp. with headquarters in Toledo, Ohio, was here at the time of his wife's death. She had been in ill health for several years, and continued to make her home in Washington.

Firm To Pay $500,000 To Get Rid Of Business

OAK PARK, Ill. (INS)—The Northern Illinois Gas Co. is going to pay at least $500,000 to get rid of 588 customers

The 588 are Oak Park home owners who have been receiving hot water piped in from the company.

The hot water was created as a steam by-product of the utility's electricity-generating plant, a system that has been going on since 1902.

But in later years, technological advances did away with the generating and, although the home owners paid a fee, the company estimated that providing hot water lost it one million dollars since 1950.

The upshot is that the utility has been granted permission by the Illinois Commerce Commission to discontinue supplying hot water by June 15, 1958, on the condition it would give cash subsidies to its 588 customers who must install their own heating plants.

Illinois Attorney, Age 62, Begins Life As Priest

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. (UPI)—A former assistant attorney general of Illinois started a new life Sunday as a Roman Catholic priest in the Benedictine Abbey here.

Donald John F. McGinnis, 62, a widower since 1947 and grandfather of 11, was ordained Father Donald in an ancient rite.

A former state's attorney in Madison County, Ill., McGinnis joined the Benedictines about five years ago to study for the priesthood. He said he had become overwhelmed by the uselessness of my life and the futility of it all. The rule of the monastic now has given new meaning to my life."

Dressed in the traditional amice, alb, cincture, mitrue and stole, McGinnis and seven other seminarians—all young—took the vows of poverty, chastity, obedience and stability.

TONOPAH, Nev. (INS)—Yogi Yorgesson, the dialect star who did Swedish, Japanese and Hindu dialect comedy skits and recordings, was killed Sunday in a highway accident.

He was found dead in the wreckage of his car, 18 miles north of Tonopah. The highway patrol said that the actor apparently fell asleep at the wheel and went off the road.

Flying Farmer Officer, Family In Plane Crash

POTTER, Neb. (UPI)—The president of the Nebraska Flying Farmers and three members of his family were killed Saturday afternoon when their light plane crashed on the tarmac from the Potter Airport.

Dean Hagemeyer of Potter, his wife Edna, son Roger, and mother, Rose, were in the plane when it crashed.

Hagemeyer was a pilot.

The plane reportedly was about two blocks off the end of the runway when it hit a dead air pocket.

The plane fell, coming under a power line with the wing tip scraping the end of a power pole.

The plane, a 170-Cessna, was demolished.

Hagemeyer's wife suffered a broken back, his mother, severe chest injuries, and his son, a jaw and head injury. Hagemeyer escaped with lacerations and bruises.

Anita Ekberg And Fiance 'Left Alone' In Lovers' Lane

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI)—Two policemen shoehoing lovers out of a local lovers' lane found British actor Anthony Steel and Anita Ekberg, his Swedish bride-to-be, in a parked car there early in the morning.

They said they went to the seclusion of Florence's wooded "casino" to escape reporters and photographers. The cops asked for high level instructions.

"Let them alone," said Police Commissioner Vincenzo Scola.

"They are engaged and are really getting married (Tuesday by present plan). It's no police matter."

Curtis Lines Up Against Cain On Security Firings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.) said Sunday he believed the administration has a "very effective security program."

Concerning government workers dismissed for security reasons, Curtis said "only one per cent of these firings has been contested. Our margin of error is remarkably good."

Curtis said he is not in agreement with former Sen. Harry P. Cain, who has sharply criticized the Eisenhower administration's security program. Cain is an Eisenhower appointee to the Subversive Activities Control Board.

Curtis said there is a tendency to overlook "the fact that government has the right and duty" to select carefully its employees.

British Use T-Gas On Cyprus Girls

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—British troops used tear gas to disperse crowds of girls demonstrating in the main streets of Nicosia Sunday.

Police and troops were called out when 200 schoolboys and girls started marching through the streets carrying banners and Greek flags and chanting slogans in support of EOKA, the Cypriot organization backing union of Cyprus and Greece.

The boys fled, leaving the girls to insult the troops and throw stones and bottles at them. The soldiers fired tear gas shells and seized the banners. No arrests were made.

Army-AF Rivalry Is 'Healthy'—Case, Mahon

WASHINGTON (P) — Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) and Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.) said Sunday they think a new outbreak of Army-Air Force rivalry is a "healthy thing."

Case said "it keeps them from getting sloppy." Mahon said now that the dispute which "has been brooding under the surface" is out in the open all Americans have a part in the "historical decision" of what role each service should play in the future.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) said he didn't consider the rivalry a healthy thing. He said "taxpayers are concerned about waste of funds" which he contended results from efforts of the Army, Navy and Air Force to develop competing weapons.

Mahon, chairman of the House Military Appropriations subcommittee, was interviewed on a TV-radio show. Jackson and Case appeared in a television debate just one day after published reports pictured the Army as feeling that continued emphasis on air power can lead only to "national disaster."

Public Feud

This public feud was termed "a most unfortunate business" by Secretary of Defense Wilson, who said he would look into it personally.

Case said he was not disturbed by sharp rivalry among the services but felt, on the contrary, that it strengthens the defense effort by keeping the services on their toes.

Jackson, however, said this rivalry has produced "waste and duplication of effort," particularly in the field of missile development.

The Defense Department, he said, has a responsibility to make basic decisions on which service should do which job. He said this is not being done and added:

'Passed Up'

"I think quite clearly that what is happening is that these problems are being passed up to Congress..."

Case argued that the services should work independently on similar weapons in order to tailor them to "their individual needs."

On the question of whether U.S. defense forces are adequate, Case and Jackson agreed they meet the nation's present needs.

But Jackson contended they will be inadequate in the 1958-60 period.

B52 Delays

Jackson said Wilson delayed for one year an increase in production schedules for the B52 intercontinental jet bomber. And he said he believes further increases are being put off in order to hold down defense spending until next year.

Case said B52 production was curtailed initially to take advantage of "technological advances." As a result, he said, "we will have a much better B52 than we otherwise would have had."

Mahon said "a certain amount of rivalry is good" and that because "we are rapidly moving into a different type of warfare" it was inevitable to have "pulling and hauling" between the services.

Nebraska Citizens' Council Reports:

Taxes Took 26% Of Nebraska Income

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

Nebraskans shelled out more than 26 per cent of their income last year for taxes, according to the Nebraska Citizens Council.

Two-thirds of this was paid in direct state taxes and the rest in state and local taxes, the council reported.

The report says 4.84 per cent of Nebraskans' income was spent by the state. In Colorado it was 7.70 per cent, in Iowa 6.25 per cent and in Kansas 6.50 per cent.

Missouri, with 4.75 per cent, was the only state in the region lower than Nebraska.

Highway Increase Most

Nebraska's highway spending showed the largest increase and took 37.4 per cent of all state expenditures, the council said.

Education cost was 22.6 per cent and welfare 15 per cent of the total state expenditures.

Highway spending also showed the greatest increase nationally, 16.6 per cent for the year. Twenty-eight per cent of federal taxes went for highways.

Education took 29.5 per cent of the federal tax money, an increase of 8.8 per cent. The welfare expense increase was 3.7 per cent.

"Simple But Sound"

"For the first time a simple but sound school budget form" has been adopted by the commissioner of education as required by a 1955 law, the council says.

"Better budgeting should result in more careful spending, the elimination of interest payments for short-term borrowing and, therefore, more education for each school tax dollar," the report continues.

The report says in the past "school budgeting has been slipped in many districts."

The report predicts that under present bills, the federal government will pay more than half the cost of new school construction.

Four of the five communities are threatened with losing their small high schools because of the state law which requires a minimum enrollment for state approval of schools.

Spokesmen from Cushing, where a two-grade high school was closed a year ago, say the high school can be reopened within a year or so with more than the minimum of 12 pupils.

Officers besides Hendrickson are

Clyde Widman of Amelia, treasurer;

Lloyd Waldo of Amelia, secretary, and Thomas Doolittle of Amelia.

The anniversary was observed with the annual last-day-of-school picnic for the district, which has consolidated with District 26 in Doniphan.

Teacher at the District 11 school this year was Mrs. Beulah Freeman, a great, great granddaughter of George Martin, a pioneer who settled in the valley west of the school and for whom Martin Township is named.

Mrs. Josie Jones, 89, attended the school the first year it was opened and still lives in the Doniphan community.

Another former pupil at the school is C. L. Woodman, who started school there 61 years ago and attended all eight grades at the school.

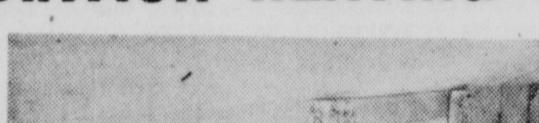

His first teacher was Kate Fanning, 95, who lives in Doniphan.

Other former teachers still living here are Mrs. Myrtle Cox, Laura Smith, Mrs. Inez Britt, Mrs. Roy Cunningham and Inez Young.

PO Clerks Condemn 'Steady Deterioration' Of Conditions

... At Annual Convention

COLUMBUS, Neb.—The Nebraska State Federation of Post Office Clerks has approved unanimously a resolution condemning the "steady deterioration" of working conditions in the postal service.

The resolution also condemned the "studied and calculated attempt to silence and gag" employees of the postal field service to prevent them from expressing their dissatisfaction with existing conditions.

A major objective of the clerks is enactment of legislation now pending in Congress to require heads of agencies and departments of the government to "consult working conditions.

Difference Of Opinion

There is not a meeting of minds within the high command of the state game department. The issue is the allocation of authority.

The game commission's five district chiefs, men nominally at the head of the work in as many regions feel that the state's new program which created them will not work effectively until sufficient authority is delegated to them by the commission. Power limited to reprimand, they argued, lacks the needed force.

The distribution of functions and authority is an administrative problem within the confines of the department. The state is willing to await

While checking over the calendar in the hope of discovering when hostilities between Hyde Sweet of the Nebraska City News-Press and this writer should be resumed over the merits of potato salad and fried chicken, we discovered that for a change, Mr. Sweet decided to take his readers 125 per cent into his full confidence.

Under the heading, "Artist At Work," the author of Nebraska's very readable "Kick Kolumn" printed the picture of a most attractive young woman seated in front of an easel.

"What goes on?" we asked ourselves under our breath.

Then we remembered that it has been Mr. Sweet's program to spend the closing weeks of winter in sunny Arizona where painters and writers come at a dollar a dozen. We have heard that some of the painters actually pay anyone

Looking For The Villain

It is to be admitted that Nebraska did not qualify as a stalwart example of democracy last week when more than half of its eligible voters occupied themselves otherwise than as voters in the state primary elections. At a time when major concerns call for widespread and thoughtful balloting there were far too many who remained away from the polls.

And as to be expected the search for the villain is underway. State Senator William McHenry of Nelson said it was not like the old times when every county seat had two or more

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

Secretary Benson's brief visit to Nebraska, again postponed, will be better than nothing at all. However, any attempt to actually get a line on Nebraska agriculture in the few hours that the secretary has allotted himself is a joke. Nebraska's 77,000 square miles, with its diversified farming programs, offers considerably more of a challenge for an effort at understanding than can be solved in a day.

There has been much emphasis put upon the fact that Congress was guilty of dragging its feet when it came to establishing the soil bank. To have given the wheat farmer of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri an opportunity to have participated in the soil bank program, it would have been necessary for the administration to have secured legislative action in 1955, not last January when Congress reconvened. Winter wheat is planted in the fall. In this state, most wheat is seeded before the middle of September. Had the members of Congress reached Washington in the early days of January, and without loss of time given authorization to the soil bank program in 24 hours, it still would have been weeks too late to affect the 1956 crop. It is, shall we say, little things of this nature—in the case of the individual wheat grower in Nebraska—not so little—that have resulted in much criticism. Instead of using Congress as a whipping boy to explain the delay in farm legislation, a frank, candid statement by the administration would help a great deal in clearing away confusion. If the soil bank program were to be effective in 1956, then the necessary legislative authorization must have received approval before the fall days of 1955.

Secretary Benson should not be deceived by surface appearances in Nebraska. Many of the fields of wheat in the eastern and central sections of the state hold forth great promise at this time. But we are short of subsoil moisture—terribly short. A few days of heat would reduce the prospects materially. In certain of the southwestern counties, deterioration of wheat fields was pronounced throughout the past week.

The Broken Bow Chieftain last week, noting that Tuesday's primary brought out one of the lightest votes in the history of Custer County, added that generally "The trend appears to be swinging back toward the 1930s when the parties shared the county vote about evenly. About 2,307 ballots were cast," the Chieftain adds. "Nearly 2,000 people who voted in the 1954 primary, all of them Republicans, apparently stayed home this year. Democrats had a very few more voters out than last time. They out-voted Republicans in five rural precincts and one in town. The vote was about even in five others, and in most of the rest Republicans held a bare 2-to-1 lead. Most towns were heavily 2-to-1 Republican." Here is a region on the fringes of the Sandhills, a cattle country and thousands of cultivated acres.

Custer County Votes

We get a reasonably accurate picture not only of Custer County but of other areas in Nebraska. There was no test of the farm vote. Rather than take the trouble to go to the ballot box, the farmer stayed home. What he will do in November rests on the lap of the gods.

No Surplus

Iowa State College conducted a poll and found that Iowa farmers are owners of low priced cars averaging two years old, and few own more than one. We are glad that's settled. The word has been getting around that farmers own two cars which are generally gleaming Cadillacs. Indeed a story to that effect in the New York Times was quoted by Harpers magazine under the title of "Rural Slackers." That was the story that embarrassed Secretary Benson whose department praised it. We can say this: there may be a surplus of farm products in the hands of the government but we have noticed no surplus of either cash or Cadillacs out here on the farms.

Taber Thrift Is For Public Only

WASHINGTON — The most famous economist in Congress is John Taber, Republican, of Auburn, N.Y. Taber, a veteran member of the appropriations committee once knocked $30,000,000 out of the State Department's Voice of America and propaganda budget, cut the Food and Drug Administration so drastically that it could inspect poultry plants only once every 12 years, and lopped 6,000 tax agents off Internal Revenue at a time when the government needed more than ever to investigate tax evasion.

Taber is one who believes, however, that economy should not begin at home. He has had his own son Charles on the government payroll at $632 a month and his brother Silas at $379 a month. When chairman of the appropriations committee, he also spent $124,905 annually for 28 clerks — the largest congressional staff in Washington.

Taber today is no longer chairman. But even so, it's now learned he still enjoys a neat piece of personal patronage. Francis Mentillo gets a salary of $4,707 from the House Appropriations Committee for which he committee is supposed to work. However, he is seldom in Washington or late, spends his time in Taber's home town mending Taber's political fences.

Also interesting is the fact that although Taber consistently voted against Social Security for workers, he voted for pensions for congressmen. If he retires from Congress at the end of 1956, as some of his constituents want him to, he will collect an annual pension of $12,780 — assuming he has made regular retirement contributions.

BRITISH FROGMAN

Information leaking out of London is that the British frogman was sent to examine the hull of the Russian vessel in Portsmouth harbor to see if the vessel might be equipped with an atomic trapdoor.

White the British did not really suspect that the ship which carried Bulgarian and Khrushchev on a good-will mission would deposit an atomic bomb in Portsmouth harbor, the great dread of every major country is that some day a ship will "lay an egg"—in other words, an A-bomb — in its harbor.

Atomic trapdoors for the deposit of such bombs are extremely hush-hush and it's reported that the British frogman was investigating to see whether the Russian cruiser was so equipped.

Racism Fails In Texas Primary

WASHINGTON — The pattern of appeal to racial prejudice, coupled with an attack on the Supreme Court, is revealed in a survey of the flood of often inflammatory literature used in the precinct convention campaign in Texas in behalf of Governor Allan Shivers.

This same pattern is evident elsewhere in the South. Racism in its most demagogic form was used against Governor Leroy Collins in the recent Florida primary as it was turned against Senator Lyndon Johnson in Texas.

He suggested that the most violent aspects of the campaign had developed after a visit to Shivers by Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., which, according to Johnson, Brownell had tried to keep secret. Here, Johnson implied, was a Republican mastermind guiding the Shivers' campaign.

Shivers' supporters invited Republicans to come into the precinct conventions, but this appeal did not take. The chief emphasis, however, was on race, with every form of exploitation employed. The mails were flooded with postcards saying Negroes would take over the state unless voters turned out for Shivers.

In a week of intensive speechmaking, he appealed to the loyalty of Texas Democrats and cited his own record in behalf of Texas' interests.

He suggested that the most violent aspects of the campaign had sounded defeated and it is believed that this will help to keep the integration issue in its more violent form out of the Florida primary preference primary on May 29.

The racist doctrine was spread by white Citizens Councils and in Texas by some reactionary business interests that coupled the race appeal with denunciation of labor unions and any form of interference from "outside."

While Shivers denied after the campaign any knowledge of the way the race issue was exploited, most no one else in Texas was unaware of what was happening.

Newspapers throughout the state carried large advertisements with photographs of Paul Butler as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and Representative William L. Dawson, Chicago Negro, as vice-chairman. Dawson is only one of six vice-chairmen. The text beneath the photographs said that the Democratic Committee, the CIO Political Action Committee and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples all demanded "that our governor be purged."

Pro-Shivers speakers went so far as to hint that Senator Johnson would put the state leader of the NAACP in control of the Texas delegation should he win a majority in the precinct conventions.

The paradox for Johnson was that many of these same organizations in the North have attacked him as a reactionary. Whenever the interest of Texas' resources and Texas' wealth has been involved, as in tidelands oil and natural gas, Johnson has employed all his influence in the Senate to keep the oil for the state and to stop federal regulation. Yet many oil men put money into the campaign against him and his principal losses were in the oil counties.

But his victory was of such a magnitude — about 1,600 delegates for Johnson, 250 for Shivers and 50 in doubt — that he will go to the national convention in Chicago with a new authority. He has said that he will use this authority for the kind of moderation which,

New Dump Site: Street Questions

When the City Council meeting Monday is finished, chances are that a number of important items will be disposed of.

On the agenda for Monday are such issues as the new dump site north of Lincoln, opening or abandonment of Leighton west of 48th, a sidewalk along 40th from A to Van Dorn and the improvement of city streets. Each of the items are of vital importance to at least a few people and some of them of concern to many people.

MYSTERIOUS "MR. WICK"

The amazing Mr. Wickersham is still at it. The Democratic congressman who says he was "reared on a cotton, wheat, and dairy farm" near Mangum, Okla., has been involved in still more real estate deals. His ability to turn over land for a tidy profit, while grousing that congressional salaries are too low, mystifies his colleagues. Here are his two latest deals, just uncovered:

Near Dickenson, Md., not far from the farms of Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and Owen Scott of U.S. News and World Report, Wickersham bought around 200 acres from Le Roy Donaldson, a cattle farmer who had lost heavily during the recent drop in hog and cattle prices.

Donaldson, who is a one-man family farmer and has lived on his place for years, sold to a man who called himself "Mr. Wick" for a reported $42,000. He did not know it was the congressman from Oklahoma. "Mr. Wick" then turned around and resold the farm even before paying any cash. The selling price is not known, but Wickersham is reported to have made a profit of around $30,000.

Across the Potomac, the same Congressman also bought up a 50-acre farm belonging to Aubrey Cloud, about 22 miles from Warrenton, Va. He has applied for soil conservation aid in building a pond, has kept the farm for some months, and apparently hasn't been able to turn it over as quickly as his Maryland property.

Under the government dispersal act, many government agencies will have to move to near-by Virginia and Maryland to avoid congestion in case of H-bomb raids. Wickersham has already bought up the land which the geological survey covets, has other holdings in the general area where the Atomic Energy Commission, the Bureau of Standards, and the Weather Bureau are to be located. He also owns two small plots of land near Colorado Springs where the Air Force academy is being built, and over 800 acres near the Everglades National Park in Florida.

Secondly, the question of work on both South and Randolph Streets is complicated by the part played by property owners involved. Part of the cost of widening and resurfacing these two streets is to be assessed back against the property owners. Unless 50 per cent or more of these owners sign up for paving and an assessment, they can be charged nothing. Without such a charge, it would be impossible for the city to undertake either project at this time.

But while these complications make a decision difficult, they do not render it impossible. If the question of assessments on South and Randolph is not yet settled, it should be done immediately. If it is impossible to reach an agreement with property owners, then both projects should be abandoned until a later date, despite their present urgency.

If either job cannot be done, nothing can be gained by letting the money for that purpose lay idle in the city treasury.

When it comes to a question of the dump site, two hard facts face the Council. First, no one wants a dump located near them and to find a spot where there would be no objections to it would be next to impossible. Secondly, time is running out and a location must be ready for use within a very short time.

Those who object to the dump north of Lincoln are not to be criticized for their position. It is to be expected that the people in that area do not want the dump, particularly adjoining property owners.

But while there is merit in the position taken by objectors, it seems as though some aspects of the situation are in a state of confusion. The city claims the dump is not an attraction for rats and other insects when the land fill method is used. If this is true, it is not a point on which objection to the dump should be made.

Secondly, the question of work there will be blowing debris and smoke from the dump. On the contrary, Park Superintendent James Ager states that there will be little if any nuisance from blowing trash or smoke. It will be hard to settle that question until the dump is in actual operation.

Housing Ordinance

LINCOLN, NEB.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star:

We are having elections, dump-trouble, and the usual quota of auto accidents, hub-cap thefts, and domestic problems. Busy as we are it is essential that we do not lose track of the proposed housing ordinance. At the recent hearing we were promised that consideration would be given to our objections and that the ordinance would be submitted to the city council at an early date.

We hope this will be done.

We earnestly request that copies of the rewritten ordinance be made available to those who wish to study it. When we study it, we hope that the objectionable factors have been changed. We desire to co-operate with this law; not to continue to fight it. We shall look eagerly for these features, among others:

1 — A clear, unqualified statement that this ordinance shall not apply to existing structures. We want no 30 per cent clause limiting our right to repair or rebuild. Thirty per cent of assessed valuation will hardly paint a house these days. At a hearing we were told that if an owner spends more than 30 per cent, his house should be classified as a new structure. We believe this classification is unrealistic and invalid. Many existing dwellings can be remodeled and made to serve for years to come, though the cost might easily exceed 30 per cent of the assessed valuation. But if the owner must remodel the entire house according to the restrictions governing new houses (if this ordinance passes) he will spend hundreds of unnecessary dollars, an investment for which he can receive no return. No good purpose can be served by restricting repairs and improvements.

2 — Elimination of arbitrary standards restricting new construction. We refer to the distinction between cellar and basement, window area vs. floor area, size of two apartments permitted to share bath, and floor area per occupant in sleeping rooms. It might be more realistic to limit the number of persons who may share one bath. The character of the individual apartment and the law of supply and demand may be depended on to govern the use of basement living units. Every landlord knows that when better apartments become available, tenants move out of cellars.

3 — Conformity to our American system of government: The legislative department of the city government should pass the law, the mayor should put it into effect, and the courts should judge violations. The officer who makes the inspections and brings charges should not conduct the hearings; the council should not judge and pronounce sentences.

4 — Elimination of placarding non-conforming dwellings.

5 — Modification of penalties: $100 and six months in jail for every day of violation sounds blood-thirsty.

6 — Elimination

Red's Easy-Going Policies To Lighten Soviet Burden

TRYING TO WOO PUBLIC

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The trend of Soviet internal policy these days indicates the Soviet regime is subjecting itself to a "liberalization" which could have far-reaching effects.

News of what the Soviet government is doing inside its own country comes to the West in bits and pieces. When these are fitted together to see the over-all trend, two general conclusions seem justified. They are:

1. The Soviet leadership remains committed to an enormous economic buildup and its aim of overtaking the United States and creating an ultimately all-Communist world.

Concessions

2. The Kremlin chiefs, in order to get wider support from Soviet citizens for these goals, have embarked on a program of concessions to the public.

It is necessary to be hard-headed about whatever the Kremlin proclaims and to look for gimmicks. But it also is wise to look objectively at what it is doing.

Here are some concessions to the Soviet public since the beginning of this year:

1. Condemnation of terror. In addition to previous steps since Stalin's death to discredit and relax police terror, Nikita Khrushchev denounced this phase of Stalin's activity at the 20th party Congress in February. His pronouncements were made known to much of the public through Communist party channels. Since then evidence has piled up of release of some of those imprisoned who have survived and rehabilitation of the memory of some of those liquidated.

Police Curbed

In addition there have been concrete measures to prevent and discredit police terror as a method of rule. On April 23 it was announced the Soviet government had established a watchdog committee to guard against abuse of police power.

On the same day "trial by confession" on the model of the purge trial prosecutor, Andrei Vyshinsky, was denounced. On May 13 it became known that a senior Soviet police officer had told visiting French Socialists that within 12 to 18 months all internment camps in the Soviet Union would be abolished. He also said deportation of Soviet citizens to remote areas such as Siberia and the Far North is now generally forbidden even though it could still be applied to people convicted of serious political crimes "by normal court procedure."

2. Concessions to labor. The Soviet government has taken steps to give a better deal to nonfarm workers. A 40-hour week has been promised in the next several years. The work week already has been cut from 48 hours to 46. The widely hated 1940 law which froze Soviet workers to their jobs and forbade them to quit without official permission on penalty of criminal prosecution was abolished. The decree specifically

Public Gets Its First View Of AF Missile Launching

By VERN HAUGLAND

PATRICK AIR FORCE BASE, Fla.—The Air Force launched a Martin Matador guided missile here Sunday for the first time in public.

The missile, resembling a jet fighter plane in size and shape, took off before an Armed Forces Day audience estimated at 20,000 to 25,000 persons.

A burst of flame from an orange colored "booster bottle" attached beneath the tail sent the missile thundering into the air across the coastal highway from which all traffic had been cleared half an hour earlier.

The silver-colored pilotless plane flashing in the sun, streaked northeastward somewhat to the north of the customary missile-launchings from this area.

F-86 Chase Plane

The instant it was under way a North American F-86 Sabre Jet fighter flashed across the airfield just above it to serve as "chase plane" and observe its flight.

The missile accelerated so swiftly that it appeared to be fleeing from the fighter plane. To assist in the visual tracking, the Matador had been equipped with a purple dye so that it left a beautiful cherry-colored trail out across the blue water.

It was the first missile launching from this base near headquarters of the Air Force Missile Test Center which operates the 5,000-mile aerial testing range extending from Florida into the Caribbean and out into the South Atlantic.

Heretofore, small missile launchings have been from Cape Canaveral, 18 miles north.

Although the length of the missile's flight was not disclosed, it reportedly was to fly about 250 miles before being dumped into the ocean.

The Matador is the first Air Force tactical missile to go into operation.

Red's Easy-Going Policies To Lighten Soviet Burden

TRYING TO WOO PUBLIC

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The trend of Soviet internal policy these days indicates the Soviet regime is subjecting itself to a "liberalization" which could have far-reaching effects.

News of what the Soviet government is doing inside its own country comes to the West in bits and pieces. When these are fitted together to see the over-all trend, two general conclusions seem justified. They are:

1. The Soviet leadership remains committed to an enormous economic buildup and its aim of overtaking the United States and creating an ultimately all-Communist world.

Concessions

2. The Kremlin chiefs, in order to get wider support from Soviet citizens for these goals, have embarked on a program of concessions to the public.

It is necessary to be hard-headed about whatever the Kremlin proclaims and to look for gimmicks. But it also is wise to look objectively at what it is doing.

Here are some concessions to the Soviet public since the beginning of this year:

1. Condemnation of terror. In addition to previous steps since Stalin's death to discredit and relax police terror, Nikita Khrushchev denounced this phase of Stalin's activity at the 20th party Congress in February. His pronouncements were made known to much of the public through Communist party channels. Since then evidence has piled up of release of some of those imprisoned who have survived and rehabilitation of the memory of some of those liquidated.

Police Curbed

In addition there have been concrete measures to prevent and discredit police terror as a method of rule. On April 23 it was announced the Soviet government had established a watchdog committee to guard against abuse of police power. On the same day "trial by confession" on the model of the purge trial prosecutor, Andrei Vishinsky, was denounced. On May 13 it became known that a senior Soviet police officer had told visiting French Socialists that within 12 to 18 months all internment camps in the Soviet Union would be abolished. He also said deportation of Soviet citizens to remote areas such as Siberia and the Far North is now generally forbidden even though it could still be applied to people convicted of serious political crimes "by normal court procedure."

2. Concessions to labor. The Soviet government has taken steps to give a better deal to nonfarm workers. A 40-hour week has been promised in the next several years. The work week already has been cut from 48 hours to 46. The widely hated 1940 law which froze Soviet workers to their jobs and forbade them to quit without official permission on penalty of criminal prosecution was abolished. The decree specifically gave workers the right to leave their jobs after two weeks notice.

Pensions

Old age and disability pensions for wage and salary earners in the lower and middle income brackets were substantially increased.

3. Women. The Soviet government this year has taken two measures affecting women. The first provides increased maternity leave for pregnant women—112 days with full pay instead of 77 as previously. The second legalizes abortions under proper medical conditions. Since the mid 1930s abortions had been against the law.

4. Reduction of armed forces. The Soviet government proclaimed its intention to reduce its armed forces by 1,200,000 men. This measure if actually carried out, will be popular because it will return to civilian life many army recruits and make possible a more rapid economic progress.

Education

5. Education and science. The Soviet government has reassured its intention to expand rapidly the educational system of the country and introduce as soon as possible universal, free and compulsory 16-year primary and secondary education. Higher educational facilities are being expanded. The Soviet took to abolish tuition charges for both secondary and higher education. In science the Kremlin, by seeing that Trofim Lysenko was dismissed from his post as president of the All-Union Academy of Agricultural Sciences, gave an additional indication of its willingness to permit freedom of scientific discussion—something which did not exist under Stalin.

6. Travel abroad. Last year for the first time the Soviet government permitted some small groups of Soviet tourists to go abroad. This year the relaxation of Stalin's rule of no travel in foreign lands, except on government business, has been relaxed further. But it is still a far cry from real freedom of travel.

7. In Central and South Africa, 80 per cent of public education for Africans is being done by the churches," he pointed out.

Shacklock also described the increasing activity of the Christian missions on several fronts, specifically in health work and education.

"There is no stopping the breakdown of old customs and the building up of new," he said.

Fast Changes In Missionary Work Is Told

Dr. Floyd Shacklock, executive secretary on world literacy and Christian literature of the National Council of Churches described the great changes which are taking place in Africa in a public address at First Methodist Church Sunday night.

He told of some of the primitive villages which he had visited in Africa and the work that he saw done in literacy.

"The outstanding fact is the rapidity with which changes are taking place," Dr. Shacklock said.

This is caused, he said, not only by developments in commerce and agriculture but by the eagerness of the African to have manufactured goods and education.

"There is no stopping the breakdown of old customs and the building up of new," he said.

Shacklock also described the increasing activity of the Christian missions on several fronts, specifically in health work and education.

"In Central and South Africa, 80 per cent of public education for Africans is being done by the churches," he pointed out.

Hostess At Sunday Reception

A hostess at her home on Sunday afternoon was Mrs. H. C. Mardis who entertained at reception honoring her son, Hal Mardis, and his fiancee, Miss Janet Schenken, whose marriage will be an event of June 22.

tion, the honored couple and the members of their families were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will C.

SUBURBIA

We keep thinking that one of these days we're going to be without news for Star in Suburbia while our Suburban friends take a week out for a rest cure, but we certainly weren't disappointed after our tour through Cotter Terrace this week, as we found the usual amount of activity out that way, such as birthdays, dinner parties, house guests, and such and things.

To Be Hostess

Mrs. Philip Dunning will be hostess next Wednesday evening to the members of the Sunrise Opti-Mrs. Club at her home, 1740 High. The business meeting will begin at 8 o'clock.

Afternoon Ceremony

MRS. EARL G. BOOL

For the marriage of Miss Darlene Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rosco Elliott, to Earl G. Bool, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bool, on Sunday afternoon, May 20, the chancel of the First Baptist Church was appointed with arrangements of gladioli. The 4 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Gordon Schroeder, and Mrs. Milburn Johnson, who played the wedding music, also accompanied the vocal soloist, Ron Nelson of Ceresco.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Baker wore a ballerina-length frock of pink net over taffeta. The bridesmatron, Mrs. Harold Brethower, wore a frock identically styled to that of the matron of honor but in the light-green tone. Each carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white carnations which was centered by a white orchid.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the guests in the church parlors.

Mr. Bool and his bride will make their home at Route 2, Lincoln.

Interclub

To Hear Talks

Mrs. Viola Welsh, new president of the Lincoln Women's Interclub Council, will preside at the May meeting of the group to be held Tuesday following luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce.

The program will be a presentation of the proposed bond issues on the city-county building by Chauncey Barney, and the new library by Charles Dalrymple.

Plainview

Club Meets

Mrs. Eugene Kolder was hostess to the members of the Plainview Extension Club at the group's May meeting when the lesson, "Furniture Cosmetics," was given by Mrs. Jim Gurnon. The afternoon hours were spent informally, and refreshments were served by the hostess.

The club's next meeting will be a luncheon held at the home of Mrs. Gurnon.

ADVERTISMENT

More Comfort Wearing FALSE TEETH

There is a pleasant way to overcome loose plate discomfort. For example, an improved powder, sprinkled on upper and lower plates holds them so tightly so that they feel more comfortable. No grit, no taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Don't pour sour. Check "plate teeth" today at any drug counter.

Mothers Club Names Officers

At the May meeting of the Beta Theta Pi Mothers Club, held last week at the home of Mrs. Herbert Potter, Mrs. G. F. Brownfield was elected president for the coming year.

Other new officers are Mrs. J. A. Fagan, Jr., vice president; Mrs. W. T. Spels, secretary; and Mrs. H. H. Wiederspan, treasurer.

TOWN TALK

IT'S A rosier world this morning for certain members of the young feminine set — specifically the eighth grade girls at Irving Junior High School — It's an old Irving custom that no girl in the school wears lipstick while she is in the eighth grade — and then only when the last curtain has gone down on the school's annual spring operetta — The spring opera was last weekend — and immediately following the performance outcome the lipsticks that from now on and forever will be a most important feature in the lives of these current debutantes.

AND have you heard the story of the diamond necklace? It happened at the Junior League Thrift Shop where clothes, costume jewelry, good times, bad things and a variety of this and that are sent to be sold by the Junior League. Recently a box of costume jewelry and trinkets arrived at the shop, and one of the Junior Leaguers, arranging the jewelry counter, came across a chain that was ornamented with numerous rhinestones. She asked the price and was told she could have it for a nickel — She bought it. When she arrived home she took another look at the chain and the jewel's and wondered if they could be real diamonds. She took them to a jeweler and learned that they were diamonds, indeed, and that the chain was worth more than $300. Her next venture was to find out who sent the box of jewelry and then call a member of the family to explain what had happened. The chain had been discarded as an insignificant costume piece, and it was a great surprise to all concerned when its worth was discovered.

Anyway, the Junior Leaguer who returned the piece to its rightful owner was rewarded with a beautiful silver tray.

Afternoon Ceremony

MRS. EARL G. BOOL

For the marriage of Miss Darlene Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rosco Elliott, to Earl G. Bool, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bool, on Sunday afternoon, May 20, the chancel of the First Baptist Church was appointed with arrangements of gladioli. The 4 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Gordon Schroeder, and Mrs. Milburn Johnson, who played the wedding music, also accompanied the vocal soloist, Ron Nelson of Ceresco.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Baker wore a ballerina-length frock of pink net over taffeta. The bridesmatron, Mrs. Harold Brethower, wore a frock identically styled to that of the matron of honor but in the light-green tone. Each carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white daisies. The flower girls were Sharon Nicholls and Miss Coleen Nicholls, cousins of the bridegroom, and the rings were carried by the bride's cousin, Diane Eben, Jr.

George Bool served his brother as the best man and the ushers were Vernon Nelson of Raymond, Curtis Paswater, Walter Garner, and James Hellerich. The bride appeared in a gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta. Fashioned of lace, the fitted bodice was designed

We keep thinking that one of these days we're going to be without news for Star in Suburbia while our Suburban friends take a week out for a rest cure, but we certainly weren't disappointed after our tour through Cotner Terrace this week, as we found the usual amount of activity out that way, such as birthdays, dinner parties, house guests, and such and things.

Afternoon Ceremony

Miss Delores McClellan and Miss Joyce Miller gave a surprise miscellaneous shower Friday evening in honor of Miss Jean Rodzielski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rodzielski, who is to marry S. Sgt. Wm. H. Schaffhausen of LAFB on June 9. Friends and neighbors were invited to Delores' home for a dessert supper and bingo.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Scott are looking forward to their vacation which will begin the first of this week. They plan to spend a week driving through Colorado, observing some of its beautiful sights.

Mrs. Mabel Williams returned to her home in North Platte on Wednesday after spending four days with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcell Hansen were hosts at a dinner party Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Van Matre who are here from California visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. F. McDougall.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bartell and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kramer of Syracuse were guests for dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Kirby Sunday noon.

Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Swoboda and their two children, Lee and Gary traveled to Ashland over the weekend for a belated Mother's Day. Four generations were represented at the family gathering.

We have decided that Mrs. Charles Cadwell should get an award for bravery. Saturday morning she piled fifteen children into her station wagon, took them to the Fairmont Show, piled them all back into the car and brought them back to her house for a picnic lunch.

The occasion was to celebrate the 8th birthday of her daughter, Carolyn Ann. When we talked to her at 1 o'clock that afternoon, Mrs. Cadwell was just about to settle down for a nice long nap. Can you blame her?

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the guests in the church parlors.

Mr. Bool and his bride will make their home at Route 2, Lincoln.

TOWN TALK

IT'S A rosier world this morning for certain members of the young feminine set — specifically the eighth grade girls at Irving Junior High School. It's an old Irving custom that no girl in the school wears lipstick while she is in the eighth grade — and then only when the last curtain has gone down on the school's annual spring operetta — The spring operetta was last weekend — and immediately following the performance came the lipsticks that from now on and forever will be a most important feature in the lives of these current sub-debs.

AND have you heard the story of the diamond necklace? It happened at the Junior League Thrift Shop where clothes, costume jewelry, good things, bad things and a variety of this and that are sent to be sold by the Juniors. Recently a box of costume jewelry and trinkets arrived at the shop, and one of the Juniors, arranging the jewelry counter, came across a chain that was ornamented with numerous rhinestones. She asked the price and was told she could have it for a nickel. — She bought it. When she arrived home she took another look at the chain and the jewels and wondered if they could be real diamonds. She took them to a jeweler and learned that they were diamonds, indeed, and that the chain was worth more than $300. Her next venture was to find out who sent the box of jewelry and then call a member of the family to explain what had happened. The chain had been discarded as an insignificant costume piece, and it was a great surprise to all concerned when its worth was discovered.

Anyway, the Junior Leaguer who returned the piece to its rightful owner was rewarded with a beautiful silver tray.

NOW FOR THE STRICTLY SOCIAL NEWS

Sandra Burnett, Bride

MRS. ROBERT MILLER

Pedestal baskets of white majestic daisies and blue-throated white gladioli appointed the chancel of the Trinity Methodist Church on Sunday afternoon, May 20, for the wedding of Miss Muriel Sandra Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Burnett, and Robert Eugene Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Miller of Falls City. The Rev. Vance D. Rogers solemnized the 4 o'clock ceremony and Charles W. Tritt, who played the wedding music, also accompanied Miss Pat Warner, the vocal soloist.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Howard E. Hall, was the matron of honor and her frock of horizon blue crystallette was fashioned with a soft decollete neckline in a sculptured bodice, and the bouffant, waltz-length skirt was accented at the back with a gathered bustle. The bridesmaids, Miss Jean Donahue, and Mrs. William Hill, Jr., and the junior bridesmaids, Miss Zenith Ann Hall, and Miss Marjorie Hall, nieces of the bride, wore identically styled frocks as that of the matron of honor. Matching bandeaux of crystallette and waist-length gloves completed their costumes. Each attendant carried a crescent bouquet of blue and white daisies. Preceding the ceremony, the candles were lighted by Mrs. Alvin Schoenrock of Fairbury, and Miss Hanna Rosenberg.

Richard E. Miller of Minneapolis, Minn., served his brother as the best man and the guests were seated by Alvin Schoenrock of Fairbury, Virgil Brackhahn of Falls City, Howard E. Hall, Earl E. Miller, Jr., and William J. Hill, Jr.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of tulle and lace over taffeta. The low shell neckline was fashioned with a yoke of softly pleated tulle which was edged with a band of imported French lace. The brief sleeves also were accented by a band of scalloped lace, which was repeated in circular bands on the extremely voluminous tulle floor-length skirt. A pleated tulle cloche held in place her triple-tiered elbow-length veil of illusion, and she carried a cascade arrangement of blue french carnations and stephanotis, centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Miller attended Harding College in Searcy, Ark., and Nebraska Wesleyan University where she is a member of Phi Mu Sorority. Mr. Miller also attended Nebraska Wesleyan University where he is a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

The two clubs will hold a joint installation of new officers, at which Mrs. J. Lloyd McMaster, the first president of the Opti-Mrs. Club in 1934, will preside.

Assisting Mrs. Johnson as hostesses will be Mrs. Ralph Park, Mrs. Agnes Meek and Mrs. J. J. Exon.

The club's next meeting will be a luncheon held at the home of Mrs. Gurnon.

The Woman's Angle On The AF

The wives and "host girls" of future Air Force officers were given a briefing the past weekend when the group attended a meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Simpson, when Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. C. K. Arpke presided.

Mrs. Simpson, whose husband is a major in the Air Force and Mrs. Arpke, who has learned all about the Air Force from Capt. Arpke, told the group of to just what they may expect from the Air Force—and what the Air Force expects of them.

The briefing was the first of its kind in Lincoln but, some thought, it was high time that the wives of the men who will receive commissions from the Air ROTC, University of Nebraska, in June—and their fiancées and best gals, learn the ropes.

Sunday Wedding

At a Sunday afternoon ceremony on May 20 at the Temple Baptist Church the marriage of Miss Iona Mae Duggan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Duggan of Hershey, to Robert J. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Frances, was solemnized. The 2:30 o'clock service was read by the Rev. Glenn Jones, and Miss Karen Miller, who played the wedding music, also accompanied the vocal soloist, Alan Thomas.

The maid of honor, Miss Maxine Jorgenson of Curtis wore a ballerina-length frock of light blue tulle and the bridesmaids, Miss Mercedes Sampson, and Miss Shirley Jones wore ballerina-length frocks in a light green shade. Each carried a colonial bouquet of spring flowers. Patty Howard was the flower girl and the rings were carried by Dennis Wright.

William Wright served his brother as best man and the corps of ushers were Donald Wright, brother of the bridegroom; Kenneth Duggan and Gerald Duggan, brothers of the bride.

A gown of white tulle and lace over taffeta was chosen by the bride for her wedding. The snugly fitted bodice of lace was fashioned with a sheer yoke of tulle and a brief band of lace accented the high neckline. The long fitted sleeves extended into bridal tips. Petal-like panels of lace accented the extremely bountiful, lavalier-length skirt of tulle. A plateau of lace held her elbow-length veil of imported illusion to her head and she carried a colonial bouquet of spring flowers.

Following a wedding reception held in the church parlors, Mr. Wright and his bride left for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo.

—an outstate board member of the Historical Society, when the subject of art came up, boasted that she had "An Original". Seems she had left an aluminum teakettle on the stove too long and it had boiled dry, forming it into a molten mass that looks as if it belongs in the Museum of Modern Art. She has named it, "Carelessness."

The Lincoln Camp Fire Girls annual Grand Council Fire will be held Monday evening, May 21, at Pinewood Bowl in Pioneers Park.

The Woman's Angle On The AF

The wives and "best girls" of future Air Force officers were given a briefing the past weekend when the group attended a meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Simpson, when Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. C. K. Arpke presided.

Mrs. Simpson, whose husband is a major in the Air Force and Mrs. Arpke, who has learned all about the Air Force from Capt. Arpke, told the group of 16 just what they may expect from the Air Force—and what the Air Force expects of them.

The briefing was the first of its kind in Lincoln but, someone thought, it was high time that the wives of the men who will receive commissions from the Air ROTC, University of Nebraska, in June—and their fiancees and best gals, learn the ropes.

New officers of College View PTA were installed last week by Mrs. William McDermet, outgoing president of the Lincoln Council of Parents and Teachers. Seated (left to right) are Mrs. G. W. Caughren, second vice president; Mrs. R. G. Hollingsworth and Mr. Hollingsworth, co-presidents; and standing (from the left) Mrs. B. W. McCashland, city council representative; Mrs. C. L. Chisholm, treasurer; Mrs. Ken Pierson, secretary; and Mrs. McDermet. Not pictured are Mrs. H. J. Hales, council representative, and Mrs. Howard Elm, first vice president.

Lincoln PTA Programs

The monthly meeting of ELIOTT PTA will be held at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. A sixth grade recognition program will be followed by installation of new officers.

EVERETT PTA members and their families will meet for a 6 o'clock covered dish supper Tuesday evening preceding the May meeting of the PTA at the school. Faculty members will be guests for the evening, and the program will include installation of new officers.

The May meeting of Belmont PTA will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the school. New officers will be installed by Mrs. Herbert Glover, and a program honoring the faculty will be a feature of the evening.

A program of music by the kindergartens, first, second and third grade pupils of NORWOOD PARK PTA highlighted the monthly PTA meeting Friday evening at the school.

Following the program, the members elected new officers: president, Mrs. Dale Sickles;

Eastliners

Close Season

The members of the Eastliners Extension Club closed their season with a May meeting held at the home of Mrs. Bob Noeheve.

During the afternoon plans were discussed for the annual picnic for members and their families which will be held on June 24 at Van Dorn Park.

The first meeting of the new year will be held on Sept. 13, at the home of Mrs. Eugene Maahs.

Council Fire

The Lincoln Camp Fire Girls annual Grand Council Fire will be held Monday evening, May 21, at Pinewood Bowl in Pioneers Park.

Just Between Us Girls

—an outstate board member of the Historical Society, when the subject of art came up, boasted that she had "An Original". Seems she had left an aluminum teakettle on the stove too long and it had boiled dry, forming it into a molten mass that looks as if it belongs in the Museum of Modern Art. She has named it "Carelessness."

—do you remember when no sideboard was complete without its display of wax bananas, apples, pears, and grapes? On a recent trip saw many different and stunning arrangements of artificial fruits. Some were mixed varieties, some of all the same type, others mixed with a few artificial flowers. The idea now seems to be a stylized arrangement of varying heights and widths, and most of them in tole or metal containers.

—styles in kids may change, but their appetites don't. While sitting in the snack shop at Culver Military in Culver, Indiana was charmed to see one of the cadets (in the middle of the afternoon with dinner scheduled for six o'clock) engulfing three large hamburgers and an enormous plate of rolls. Several glasses of milk helped to wash them down.

—the Garden Club celebrated Mother's Day with its annual spring show and featured were several arrangements and table decorations carrying out the Mother's Day theme—such as a "Mother's Day Patio Supper," "My Mother's Garden", etc. The show was held all day Sunday at the Antelope Park Pavilion.

—in any of the style shows I have seen lately certain definite trends have been noticeable in summer clothes.

—candy-striped cotton dresses (like men's shirts) are shown for everyday wear with matching sweaters, as well as dark cottons with detachable capes. Or, if preferred, sheer ginghams worn with tremendous hats. And short white gloves seem to be a "must" with all of them.

—for dressier occasions flowers are important on everything from hats to dresses. One tiny pillbox hat was fashioned entirely of light red feathers. And, in the fur line, broadtail seems to have captured the spotlight—in capes, stoles, and tiny jackets.

—a friend who was taking care of a neighbor's dog admitted that one day, instead of using powdered milk with the dog's food, she had unconsciously substituted starch. I wonder if the dog is still walking around stiff-legged.

—One local husband had picked out the perfect Mother's Day gift for himself and the children to give mother—an electric saw!

—one of the most productive mistakes of which I've heard is that of a laundress who went to the wrong house and got all the washing and ironing done before the motherless young daughter of the household came home from school and assured her that she must have got the wrong address.

—Mrs. Glen Reed was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the members of the Lookout Extension Club at the club's final meeting of the season.

The program, "Hair Beauty", was given by Mrs. Marvin Burham, and the group voted to send two diabetic children to camp this summer near Plattsburgh.

Honored At Bon Voyage Party

Miss Janice Myrberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth V.

Myrberg, was hostess at dinner Saturday evening honoring Miss Judy Hanneman and Miss Kate Haggie, who will leave Lincoln on June 19 for a summer in Europe. Judy and Kate, both students at Lincoln High School, have been selected as American Field Service students to spend the summer months in homes of European families.

Myrberg, Miss Sarah Colby, Miss Margaret Liebers and Miss Mary Lou Keill.

Chairmen Are Named

Miss Gladys Hablitzel presided at the meeting of Zeta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, Tuesday evening when the new committee chairmen were named.

The chairmen will include Miss Marilyn Andrus, Miss Virginia Briggs, Mrs. Gene Draper, social; Miss Jan Rustermier, publicity; Miss Jan Stone, Miss Joan Rustermier, Mrs. Jack Runyon and Mrs. Bill Hartley, membership; Mrs. Don Scanlon, program; Mrs. Jack Cederdahl, Mrs. Jim Clement, Miss Delores Theis, ways and means; Miss Avis Stunkel, calling; Mrs. Cederdahl and Mrs. Clyde Moon, gifts.

The program was presented by Mrs. Scanlon.

Jensen's Homer Ends Pitching Duel

CHICAGO (W) — Jackie Jensen's ninth inning home run broke up a brilliant pitching duel between Ike Delock and Chicago's Bob Keegan to power Boston to a 2-1 triumph Sunday after the Red Sox had waltzed to a 12-5 victory in the first game of a doubleheader. Jensen's homer, his fourth of the year and second of the day, came with one out in the ninth. Until then, Keegan and Delock had matched pitch for pitch following first inning runs by both teams.

Mickey Vernon tagged Keegan for his fifth home run of the year with two out in the first but the White Sox came right back to tie it up on a single by Minnie Minoso and a double by George Kell with two out.

Until Jensen's blow, Keegan had allowed only six hits and given one intentional pass. It was Keegan's first loss in three decisions.

Delock allowed only six hits and gave up five walks but got out of a jam in the fifth on a great throw by Jensen. Ron Jackson opened the fifth with a double and moved to third on a bunt. Luis Aparicio singled to right and Jensen nailed Jackson at home.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Colorado Springs' Sky Sox bombarded Lincoln for 16 hits and a 19-15 victory in the first game of a Western League doubleheader Sunday, then battered back to gain a 5-5 tie in the five inning nightcap.

The second game was called to allow the first place Chiefs, losers of three straight here, to catch a train.

The Sky Sox spotted Lincoln a 5-0 lead in the nightcap but raked Chieftain Pitcher Dom Rosello for 11 hits, including Dick DiTusa's third homer of the afternoon, to gain the deadlock.

Singles by Don McDevitt, Sam Miley and Ken Toothman, followed by Dick Stuart's 2-run homer, gave Lincoln a 4-0 lead in the first game at Topeka.

Shepard's reply: "Santa Claus."

Colorado Springs scored twice in the second, once in the third on DiTusa's round-tripper and singletons in the last two innings.

Pirates Sweep 2 From Braves

Long's Homers In Both Games Spark Victories

PITTSBURGH — Sparked by two home runs by Dale Long, the Pittsburgh Pirates swept a double-header from the Milwaukee Braves Sunday, downing them 6-3 in the opener and shutting them out 5-0 in the nightcap.

Dale Long thrilled the crowd of 32,346, largest attendance at Forbes Field since May 20, 1951, as he batted in seven runs in both games.

He lofted a three-run homer, his eighth of the season, into the upper deck of the right-field stands in the fifth inning of the first game.

He shoved two more runs across in the first inning of the second game with his ninth round-tripper of the year, and batted in two more with a single in the seventh.

Ronnie Kline turned in a sparkling six-hit performance for the Pirates in the second game to chalk up his third victory of the season compared to two defeats.

Ike Declares War On Paper Work, Red Tape

WASHINGTON (INS) — President Eisenhower declared war Sunday on red tape and "paper work" in government operations. The chief executive, who has had personal experience with mountains of reports made out in triplicate during his Army life, told government agencies to trim to the bone its paper work in dealings with the public.

Eisenhower acted after one industry turning out defense weapons reported it saved $75,000 annually when the defense department simplified its forms.

Got An Assist

The President got an assist in his attack on red tape from the Hoover commission which recommended that the President "protect the public from unnecessary reporting burdens."

In a letter to Budget Director Percyval Brundage Sunday, Eisenhower armed the Budget Bureau with authority to give the public and industry a break on paper work in its dealings with the government.

He told Brundage:

"I wish you to give increased emphasis to the elimination of reporting requirements which impose unnecessary paperwork on the public."

"With respect to matters not subject to review under the federal reports act, I want you to proceed with the development, in cooperation with the affected executive agencies, of plans for eliminating unnecessary public reporting requirements and for simplifying related procedures and systems in such agencies."

Better Management

The President said that the cutting of red tape will "bring about better internal business management" throughout government.

The President's search for methods of reducing the paper-work burden on industry is being aided by seven organizations representing U. S. industry.

They include the American

Chamber of Commerce executives, American Retail Federation, American Trade Association executives, U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Controllers Institute of America, National Association of Manufacturers and National Industrial Council.

The President asked Brundage to report to him by Sept. 30 on progress and "any recommendations you may have as to further steps required for the effective control of the paperwork burden on the public."

Car Check Project

Termed A Success

Lincoln's Motor Vehicle Safety Check program Sunday "proved a far greater success than we had anticipated," according to Gifford Mullins of the Lincoln Safety Council.

Total figures have not been tabulated but an estimated 500 cars visited the check points during the first hour and a half.

The two check lanes on 11th street both reported long lines of cars waiting to be checked. There were four other locations for the inspection.

Points checked were brakes, headlights, rear and stop lights, tires, steering and wheel alignment, exhaust system and muffler, windshield wipers, glass, horn and rear view mirror.

Tax Too Heavy? How About 114%?

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Lawmakers spotted a curious thing about the income tax bill before the legislative Yuan. It said persons with annual incomes of a million Formosa dollars, about $27,000 American, were liable to a tax of 114 per cent.

Finance minister P. Y. Hsu apologized and said it would be fixed.

Houston Bank Pays Large Sum For Sculpture It Will Not Use

FORT WORTH, Tex. — The Houston, Tex., Bank of the Southwest has paid New York sculptor William Zorach for sculpture it refused to use on its new 16-million-dollar aluminum and granite building.

Zorach told the Fort Worth Star Telegram he received $10,000.

L. R. Bryan Jr., vice chairman of the bank's board of directors, said the settlement was "in the neighborhood of $50,000." Both agreed the settlement was amicable.

Zorach said the bank's refusal of his work was "a terrible disappointment" and a "great loss to Texas" because the commission represented the culmination of his life's work. He said he hopes the bank will have a change of heart and place his work on the exterior of the building to be dedicated in June.

Name Change

Bryan said the sculpture was refused because the bank changed its name from the Second National Bank of Houston to Bank of the Southwest. He said the bank may commission other sculptures keeping with the "spirit" of the name, or he said, "I think mighty pretty just plain."

Zorach became a controversial figure in Texas circles during the last year. His work, which that of three other artists was represented in an exhibition "Sport in Art" which stirred up a brouhaha in Dallas, when patriotic organizations charged that the artists had Communist or Communist front records.

The Lithuanian born Zorach said that he had lived 65 of his 69 years in America that he had been a good citizen voting Republican and Democratic in his home state of Maine and had been freed of all Communist implications by his own congressman, Robert Hale.

Jealous Artists

He said that the accusations came from New York artists jealous of his success and his reputation.

Bryan said the bank's decision not to use the sculptures resulted from "no political implications."

Zorach, whose best known works include his "Benjamin Franklin" in the Post Office Building in Washington and his "Spirit of the Dance" in Radio City Music Hall in New York, said he first learned his work for the Houston bank would not be used last Feb. 24.

3 Years' Work

He said at the time the work was 80 per cent cast in the factory and behind it were three years of extensive research and labor. He said officials of the Houston bank had visited in his studio and appeared in agreement about the work and its execution.

Zorach said one of the three pieces of sculpture was designed for placement over the main entrance to the bank. It is 30x12 feet and also use the Aztec theme representing its culture as part of Texas' soil.

The works are cast in polished aluminum and mounted on a flat ed aluminum background.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at drugstores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

BAERING DOWN ON THE NEWS By Arthur 'Bugs' Boer

A poll of the poll shows that 32 per cent of the people have no opinions worth mentioning. Another 32 per cent have opinions they shouldn't have mentioned.

Which leaves 46 per cent of the canvass-backed populace firmly seated in the isolation booth. But guessing which way the cat will jump bugs Boer doesn't entitle him to one of the kittens.

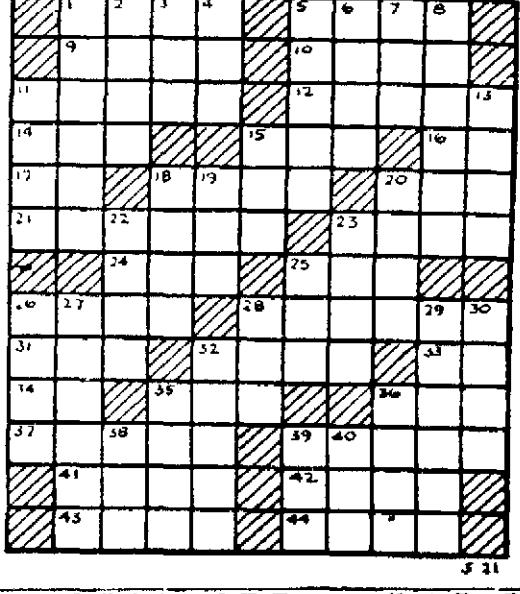

How about a No Opinion party? The most vociferous avocation we ever saw a candidate get was in a movie reel back in 1936. The audience applauded unanimously for the maxillary gymnastics of an orator who had jumped his sound track.

Finds Her Breath

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Detective Ned Brennan wrote a laconic report on a visit he made to the home of a woman who made a breathless call to police headquarters. "Woman had difficulty catching 6-year-old daughter to take corrective measures. However, before officer's arrival woman had regained breath and taken care of matter."

Human Fantom

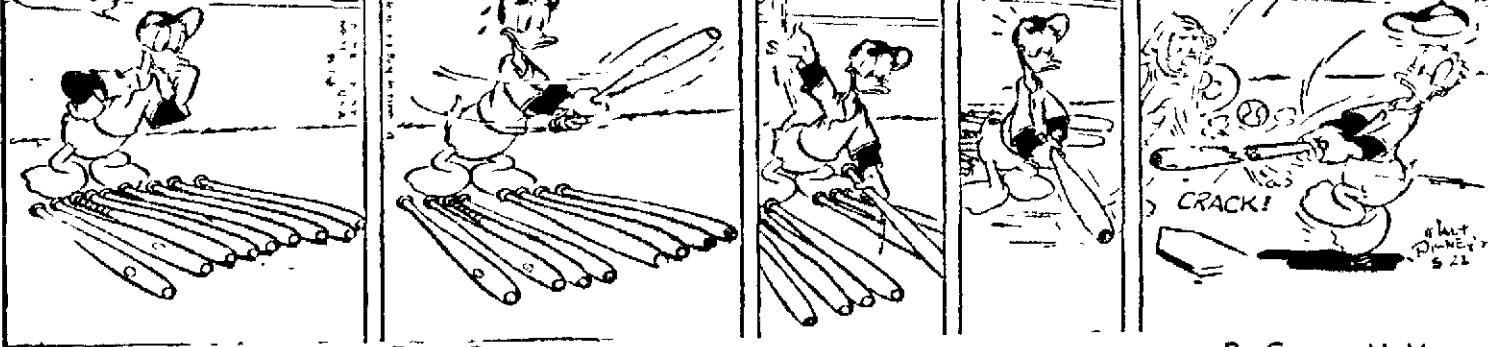

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Baltimore County hired a Human and accepted the resignation of a Human on the same day. Human (Theodore H.), was hired by the county's bureau of engineering and Fantom (Francis C.), resigned from the fire department.
